

THE TERROR-KEY REFORMS

Local government- deputies wanted power decentralised, wanted democracy, as of December 1789 February and May 1790 France was in 83 departments which were subdivided into 547 districts and 43360 communes and in Paris the local government was divided into 48 sections. Active (active->electors->deputy)and passive (could not pay) citizens, 61% of men had right to vote. in 1789-99 about a million people were elected to councils. Some didn't like the new councils and resigned and some areas were left without effective local government.
