

Blog Words Start a Riot

As writers, sometimes our job is to anger people. Not for the fun of it, mind you, but because someone is doing something wrong, and the community needs to take action to correct it. The problem is, with wrongdoing, most people are pretty apathetic – they'll wait until the situation becomes entirely intolerable to do anything, and by then, it's often too late. So, we have to fan the flames. By using the below power words, you can connect with people's anger, and slowly but surely, you can work them into a frenzy. Just be careful who you target. Lawyers can eat you alive if you pick on the wrong person.
