

Likelihood and Resemblance

らしい

-Express likelihood / speculation / resemblance based on what you heard from others without making a commitment.

—Often used in gossips

-Ambiguous: can be based on on personal observation or hearsay.

よう

Express speculation but you admit responsibility for it because you're convinced that it's true.

みたい

-Colloquial version of よう and used often in conversation.

!□!□Note: らしい、よう、みたい、そう are the same but there are nuances.

CLARIFICATION:

V-ますそうです (Personal Observation)	(Plain sentence) + そうです (Hearsay)	らしい	よう	みたい
雨が降りそうです	雨が降るそうです。	雨が降るらしいです。	雨が降るようです。	雨が降るみたい。
"It seems it will rain."	"I heard it will rain."	"It seems it will rain."	"It seems it will rain."	"It seems it will rain."
		(But you don't vouch for that statement. Probably because you only heard it from someone else.)	(But I vouch for it; evidence convinced me. Ex. dark skies, weather forecast.)	(Colloquial version of よう)

らしい "is like; seems like; ish"

-Express likelihood or speculation without making a commitment.

"It seems that...; It appears that...; It is likely that..." (But I don't vouch for it because I just heard it, don't quote me on that)

-This is an い—Adj and can be used directly as a suffix for verbs, adjectives, and nouns.

-For VERBS and ADJECTIVES, only used as らしい.

-For NOUNS, can be as らしい and らしくない。

(Noun) らしい (Noun) means "stereotypical; appropriate"

らしい can also be turned into an ADVERB らしく。

VERB : V-plain + らしい

い-Adj : い-Adj + らしい

な-Adj : な-Adj + らしい
