

Venture Capital Deal Types

Angel	An initial stage of funding provided by angel investors, typically friends, relatives or individual entrepreneurs.
Seed	The first stage of venture capital financing by a professional VC firm, typically a small investment in a very early-stage company that has usually not yet established commercial operations.
Series A	Series A Preferred Stock leads on from the Angel/Seed Stages, and is the first significant round of venture funding where Series A preferred stock is offered by a portfolio company to the venture capitalist. Series A preferred stock is convertible into common stock in certain cases such as an IPO or the sale of the company.
Series B, Series C, and onwards	A mid-stage second round of financing provided by venture capitalists, typically once a company has accomplished certain milestones in developing its business. Successive rounds are then termed Series C, Series D and so forth, each offering preferred stock and typically once a company has accomplished milestones set out.
Growth Capital/Expansion	A later-stage venture capital round in companies that are looking for capital to expand or restructure operations, enter new markets or finance a significant acquisition without a change of control of the business.

Pre-IPO	An investment into a company that is set to complete its IPO in the near future, often at a discounted price relative to expected IPO pricing amount.
Venture Debt	A type of debt financing provided to venture-backed companies by a specialized financier to fund working capital or capital expenses. Venture debt providers combine their loans with warrants or rights to purchase equity, to compensate for the higher risk of lending.
Unspecified Round	A venture financing round where the stage/series has not been disclosed.
Add-on	When a venture-backed company acquires another smaller company, or the assets of another company. This is typically to consolidate their market position, or acquire proprietary technologies from competitors, and often involves acquiring smaller rivals.
PIPE	(Private Investment in Public Equity) An investment made by a VC firm into a public company, which remains public post-investment.
Secondary Stock Purchase	Where part or all of an investor's stake in a VC-backed company is acquired directly from a shareholder/investor, rather than purchasing stock from the company.
