Handwoven	Crafted without the use of machinery, handwoven rugs are often highly valued for their craftsmanship and uniqueness.
Machine-made	Produced on looms with mechanical assistance, machine-made rugs are more affordable and offer consistent patterns.

Knotted	The most traditional and labor-intensive method, knotted rugs are made by tying individual knots on the warp threads, allowing for intricate designs.
Braided	Braided rugs are made by intertwining fabric strips, creating a durable and often reversible rug.

The technique used to create a rug not only affects its texture and durability but also its artistic and cultural significance.
