

Present Tense

The present tense is used to talk about what happens right now. It is used to tell actions, such as I eat (yo como) or they dance (ellos bailan). It can also be used for states-of-being such as I am (yo soy).

The present tense endings are as follows:

-AR verbs: -o, -as, -a, -amos, -áis, and -an

-ER verbs: -o, -es, -e, -emos, -éis, and -en

-IR verbs: -o, -es, -e, -imos, -ís, and -en

Preterite Tense

The preterite tense is used to talk about actions that happened entirely in the past. If you want to say I ate or they danced, use this tense. However, the preterite tense only applies under specific circumstances, so be sure you know when exactly to use it.

The preterite tense endings are as follows:

-AR verbs: -é, -aste, -ó, -amos, -asteís, -aron

-ER/-IR verbs: -í, -iste, -ió, -imos, -isteís, -ieron (yes, these forms are the same!)
