

Watch Command	Useful Aliases (cont)	Setting up LVCompare and LVMerge
<pre>#!/bin/bash ARGS="$@" clear; while(true); do     OUTPUT=$ARGS     clear     echo -e "${OUTPUT[@]}"     sleep 2 done</pre> This mimics the native linux watch command which is not present in Git Bash. Add this content to a file named watch (no extension) in C:\Program Files\Git\usr\bin\ After that you can watch any cmd by typing watch CMD_TO_WATCH	<table border="1"> <tr> <td>git watch-status</td> <td>git config --global alias.watch-status '! watch git -c color.status=always status'</td> <td>watches git status with colors</td> </tr> <tr> <td>git stashall</td> <td>git config --global alias.stashall 'stash save --include-untracked'</td> <td>stashes untracked files as well as tracked files</td> </tr> <tr> <td>git cloneall</td> <td>git config --global alias.cloneall 'clone --recurse-submodules --no-hardlinks'</td> <td>Recurses submodules (and adds no hard-links)</td> </tr> </table>	git watch-status	git config --global alias.watch-status '! watch git -c color.status=always status'	watches git status with colors	git stashall	git config --global alias.stashall 'stash save --include-untracked'	stashes untracked files as well as tracked files	git cloneall	git config --global alias.cloneall 'clone --recurse-submodules --no-hardlinks'	Recurses submodules (and adds no hard-links)	<pre>#Setup LVCompare git config --global diff.tool LVCompare git config --global ol.LVCompare.cmd 'C:\Program Files\Git\usr\bin\vidiff.exe "%LOCAL%" -nobdcosm -nobdpos' #Setup LVMerge git config --global merge.tool LVMerge git config --global ool.LVMerge.cmd 'C:\Program Files\Git\usr\bin\vimerge.exe "%LOCAL%" "%MERGED%" -nobdcosm -nobdpos' #Call LVCompare git difftool #Call LVMerge git mergetool</pre> First clone the repo at https://github.com/smithed Build all 4 build specs in our repo then run the installer.
git watch-status	git config --global alias.watch-status '! watch git -c color.status=always status'	watches git status with colors git stashall	git config --global alias.stashall 'stash save --include-untracked'	stashes untracked files as well as tracked files
git cloneall	git config --global alias.cloneall 'clone --recurse-submodules --no-hardlinks'	Recurses submodules (and adds no hard-links)
Useful Aliases	Keeping a Fork Up To Date
<table border="1"> <thead> <tr> <th>Command</th> <th>Alias Definition</th> <th>Result</th> </tr> </thead> <tbody> <tr> <td>git new</td> <td>git config --global alias.new '!git init &amp;&amp; git symbolic-ref HEAD refs/heads/main'</td> <td>creates new repo with main as default branch name instead of master</td> </tr> <tr> <td>git graph</td> <td>git config --global alias.graph 'log --graph --abbrev-commit --pretty=oneline --decorate --color=always'</td> <td>creates a nice commit graph</td> </tr> </tbody> </table>	Command	Alias Definition	Result	git new	git config --global alias.new '!git init && git symbolic-ref HEAD refs/heads/main'	creates new repo with main as default branch name instead of master	git graph	git config --global alias.graph 'log --graph --abbrev-commit --pretty=oneline --decorate --color=always'	creates a nice commit graph	<pre>#add remote if not already added git remote add upstream URL_TO_UPSTREAM #fetch remote branches git fetch upstream #For each branch: #merge changes git merge upstream/MYBRANCH #or rebase git rebase upstream/MYBRANCH #push changes to fork (origin) git push origin MYBRANCH</pre> Use these commands to keep a fork up to date with an upstream repository.	Push to new gitlab from
Command	Alias Definition	Result
git new	git config --global alias.new '!git init && git symbolic-ref HEAD refs/heads/main'	creates new repo with main as default branch name instead of master
git graph	git config --global alias.graph 'log --graph --abbrev-commit --pretty=oneline --decorate --color=always'	creates a nice commit graph

