

Intro

The indian government works at national level, the state or regional level and the local level.

In india the central government rules the country at the national level, the state government rules at state level, and the panchayati raj takes care of the government at the local level.

Panchayati raj

the panchayati raj is a system of local government that takes care of requirements of the rural population and the implements policies meant for them.

Local self government is a system where the problems of a local community are managed by people belonging to that community.

And the one who belongs to the community or manages it is panchayati raj. the panchayati raj is a system of local government that takes care of requirements of the rural population and the implements policies meant for them.

so this means that the panchayati raj takes care of these local problems of rural population (population of that area) and implements ( takes ) policies meant for them.

The panchayatai raj is a three-tiered system of local administration based on the concept of panchayat.-so panchayati is a three tiered ( it has 3 levels) of local administration based on or inspired on the concept of panchayat

Panchayat

Panchayat literally means a group of five people, who has been part of our village life for several years. this system went to decline when the british started ruling india. it was then revived back by the indian government after independence.
